HILLO PEOPLE OPPOSED TO MATSON LINE CUTTING OUT VOLCANO TRIP

(Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence)
HILLO, June 11.—When the news of the taking off of the steamers Matson and Maui from the Hilo run was announced last Friday there was a real howl of distress from everybody. It was felt that the removal of the steamers from the Hilo run would mean great injury to the city in cutting off this trip to the greatest attraction of the territory—the volcano of Kilauea.

The general opinion is that the Matson company is giving Hilo a black eye and that the ordinary tourist travel will drop away to nothing when the two big steamers cease to run to Hilo. It is claimed that people from the mainland will not visit Hawaii if they are informed that they cannot come all the way to Hilo in the same steamer. The fact that the steamship Mauna Kea of the Inter-Island company will be right on the job will not interest many tourists, say most people.

The business people of Hilo are determined to make every possible effort to have Captain Matson reverse his decision and to try and have the steamers retained on the Hilo run. The placing of the smaller freight steamers of the Matson company on the run does not meet with much favor, although, of course, the freight carried by those steamers will be badly needed.

This morning's cablegram from Captain Matson to E. D. Tenney, received after the above mail despatch from Hilo was written, notifying him that the United States government has informed the Matson line it intends to take over both the Maui and Matsonia within 30 days, taking the matter of resumption of inter-island service out of the Matson line's hands entirely.

INTER-ISLAND MAY PURCHASE ANOTHER SHIP

Directors of the Inter-Island have held several meetings in the last 10 days, it was learned today, considering offers made to them by shipowners on the mainland, who have wooden steamers to sell.

President James A. Kennedy of the company said today that although the directors met again this morning, it was not to take action on the question of boats to replace the Hamakua and Maui.

"The prices named by owners who cabled us asking if we were in the market for a steamer to replace the Hamakua are nearly three times what they are worth," said the president. "One firm asks us $350,000 for a wooden steamer of 900 tons' capacity. Before the European war began $125,000 would have been a reasonable price."

The Inter-Island needs another steamer urgently now, as with the Hamakua a total loss, in addition to the steel steamer Maui wrecked a few months ago, it has no boat in reserve. The Kilauea used to be a reserve boat, but she now has to be worked every day to maintain schedules and handle freight business at island ports.

WITNESSES MAY BE RECALLED IN HAMAKUA PROBE

Inquiry by the local U. S. inspectors of steam vessels into the cause of the fire and explosion which destroyed the Inter-Island steamer Hamakua recently in Alalakiki channel, between Maui and Kahoolawe, with the loss of two lives, will probably be completed by the end of this week.

Capt. Thomas J. Heeney, federal inspector of boilers, said today that Captain Meany and himself expect to complete the inquiry this week. Although practically all the witnesses have testified the inspectors will undoubtedly recall several of them for further examination. There are a few more men whom the inspectors will call on to see if they can throw any further light on the mystery.

The floating and capsize of the ship is now anchored by its own anchor and chains in its present location. The Inter-Island has abandoned the wreck, otherwise the local lighthouse district officials could require the company to keep it lighted at night.

BENNY LEONARD WILL FIGHT ON BATTLEFIELDS

New World's Champion Wants to Do His Bit; Wore Britisher Down With Hard Punches

NEW YORK, May 29.—Benny Leonard, as lightweight champion, will defend his title some time after "Uncle Sam" has finished licking Germany. This is the program he laid down today after he had sent Freddie Welsh reeling into fistic oblivion last night. He will meet Joe Welch in Philadelphia Monday night, but plans to enlist in the army today and enter active service next week.

Leonard's ascension to the throne held so long by Welsh came after a carefully planned and carefully fought battle. Eager though he was to send over the blow that would end the dancing master type of champion, he went through the eight rounds and a half of fighting cool and calm, placing his blows where they would do the most damage and only waiting for the inevitable time the turtle shell of the Britisher would drop enough for the finish.

Welsh held on, however, must be only slightly stronger than for Welsh. The old man of the ring, undoubtedly realizing the end was in sight, did everything he knew to prevent the finish of his career as leader of the lightweight division.

There was no denying, however, the cool, calm youth who stabbed and crossed, always holding his right hand in readiness.

The ninth round had been furiously fast when Leonard started the whirlwind that brought the old champion down. Crossing for the head, Welsh started into a clinch. Using his right hand almost for the first time in the bout, Leonard crept behind the champion's guard. Welsh ducked, but he was too late. The smashing power of the mauling fist caught him on the temple. Welsh's knees sagged, a sorry smile struggled over his features and he tried vainly to stagger into a clinch. Leonard slipped away and his left crushed square onto Welsh's chin. Wavering faintly and trying to hold up, Welsh sagged until his knees touched the floor. Referee McPharland started to count and Welsh arose. Again he went down, one hand clinging to the ropes in Leonard's corner. He arose, both hands on the ropes, his head unprotected. All in and out.

A dozen times the flailing fists of the eager challenger crashed into Welsh's chin. Gaily the Britisher stood it. McPharland looked appealingly into Welsh's corner, but the sponge was not forthcoming. McPharland mercifully stepped in and ended it. Welsh, given a hand by the referee, tried to reach his corner, but he sprawled and fell through the ropes. A wave of black flecked with the yellow of straw hats leaped into the smoke-filled air as the crowd acclaimed another American lightweight champion of the world. Brushing aside special policemen, the crowd surged into the ring, hugging and cheering Leonard. Welsh, sitting dazed in his corner, did not realize what had happened for several minutes.

Young Champion
Benny Leonard, the new lightweight champion, is just past 21. He is of Hebrew origin and has been fighting since 1912.

Leonard is a "legitimate" lightweight. He scaled exactly 133 pounds before his fight with Welsh.

The new champion has fought every present-day boxer of prominence in his division. His most recent triumph before winning the title was a seven-round knockout over Richie Mitchell in Milwaukee. Last night's fight was his third battle with Welsh.

TO KNOW VOCATIONS OF MEN IN PRISONS

(By Associated Press)
SPOKANE, Wash.—The name, age, record and vocation of every inmate of the county jail who is paroled or released during May and June will be filed with the national committee on employment for war purposes. Sheriff Reid received a communication from the committee and in response will cooperate in a national plan to mobilize all inmates about to be released from penal institutions, to fill up the ranks in the industrial occupations of the nation, to be depleted by the selective army draft.
